

PET-Xi Training and Ingram Micro

In September 2020 PET-Xi training worked in partnership with the DWP to recruit and upskill job seekers to work at Ingram Micro in Daventry. Ingram Micro is an international information and technology distributor.

Ingram were recruiting for Warehouse Operatives, FLT Drivers and Administrative Assistants.

Working in partnership with the DWP PET-Xi were able to recruit 12 individuals for the programme. During the which they delivered a short 3-day training course to upskill and prepare the candidates for their interview. The day after the training course finished all 12 learners progressed into employment with Ingram Micro.

One of the PET-Xi team Adam Ashley went for a tour of the work site and met some of the candidates on their first week in employment “Whilst working alongside PET-Xi I was able to interview multiple candidates provided by PET-Xi, these candidates had been upskilled recently with excellent training and all candidates were well prepared for the interviews. I was then able to offer ongoing work for most of the candidates I interviewed. The Calibre of the candidates was excellent, and their communication and interview skills were fantastic.

“I thoroughly enjoyed working with Adam and PET-Xi and hope to work together again in the future.”

Candidate quotes

“I am really glad I joined the programme, it's great working here. They are flexible with my shifts and I'm on the same shifts as my friend I travel to and from work with.”

“I have worked in warehousing before however this is much better. I am glad I did the programme and would recommend it to others.”

“Thanks to PET-Xi for loaning me a laptop to complete the course on. At the moment I cycle to work but now I have an income I am looking to learn to drive.”

“The greatest thing was the trust and the bond between us all and working as a team helping each other out.”

“Sanjay and Dan where amazing, the course is extremely beneficial for anyone who is trying to build that fundamental understanding of business and its standards especially working in a team and with clients.”
